

Make computer version in addition to mobile

Limit how much you can change the original sound so that the sound you choose isn't arbitrary. To clarify, if users literally had their hands on the sound waves and could change them as much as they want, then literally any sound can become any other, making sample selection and creativity pointless.

Some grading system where sounds whose samples were tampered with less and whose samples are most extravagant

Progression system where you unlock new ways to mess with samples

More elaborate and designed profiles that mimic github's functionality and clash royale's design

A lot of this feedback is to make the game more addicting but the exact design and functionality of the app needs to be fleshed out so we can understand what we need to build. This should probably start with your draft since it's your vision but I'd be glad to add ideas if you have questions